Between getting everything out from my trip to LA last week and cleaning out my warehouse ... There are great treasures at spectacular prices to be found!

A woman and spiritual guide came into the Berkeley Temple shop a couple of days ago and said she has been coming for many years because it is the center of the Feminine spirit. It was the first day of the year of the Monkey and she noticed our Quan Yin (representing unconditional love and this one pours blessings from her vase) was off center on our altar. She said she never noticed it before but realized this was the new year of the feminine being front and center. So, we cleared off the altar and put her front and center, underneath our White Tara with dragons protecting her ... ready for the New Year! Happy New Year!

xoxo Devi

PS When I was sharing this story with Gail as she was hostessing in our Richmond Temple shop, she said that supported the space she finds her self in, which I asked her to share with you below.

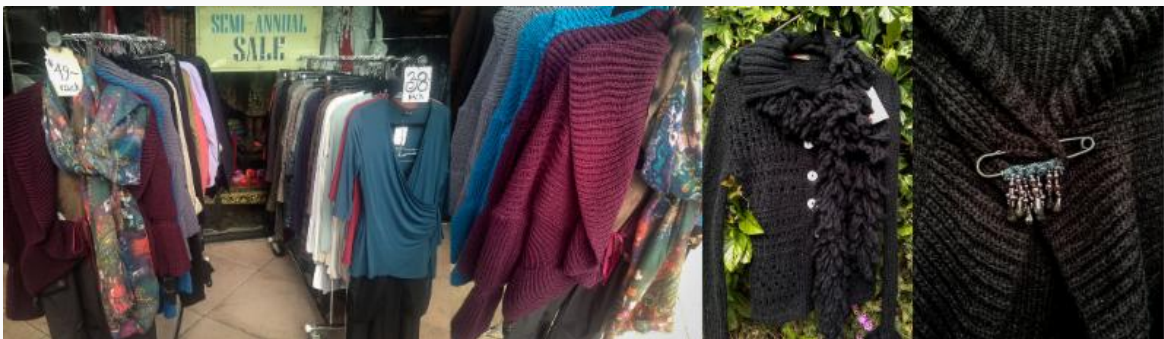

I find myself in a new place these days. No more New Years resolutions ... Instead I find myself asking the universe for guidance in becoming the best that I can be. It's amazing that in holding that request close, the tools, the love and the support I need just show up randomly! My tiny miracles...
Happy Valentines day! xoxo Gail
