Selemat Pagi! Good morning from Bali!

My Bali travel partners Clare and Ping above. Ping and I wearing our Johnny Was silk tops which travel really well and are even comfortable in the heat!

It's been a completely magical trip. Awesome partners appeared to create amazing clothing and other treasures which I'll tell you about in a future letter.

The intention for Ping and I on this trip was to "reboot" and it has been magically unfolding. The ultimate eat, pray love journey! Clare had been here many times and brought us to the best ways and she had the sweetest, deepest guides teach us their ways and guide us through 2 very special days of purification and blessings.

Some pictures below of making the offerings, the purification at the water temple and at the Mother Temple... the crowds dissolved as we began our ritual giving us a private afternoon to bring healing and happiness ... To ourselves, to our families, to our friends and to you our LoveTribe and to all.

After this blessing we were served coconuts to drink and mangosteen to eat. Then the painter at the temple recognized Clare as she has one of his paintings. He brought us to see the paintings done by him, his father, grandfather and students and we fell in love with a painting done by his grandfather's teacher. It will now go from his Temple into ours... He was so excited to hear this that he lowered the price significantly. Spirit comes first in Bali.

Now we are at our friend Michael Honacks' gorgeous home (kings home) overlooking this sacred Water Palace, Tirtagangga. What a beautiful honor... The journey continues...

Below my bed, Clare looking over paintings she commissioned for you to see and some of you to buy. And below that the view of the water gardens from our home.

Dinner with our host, then skinny dipping under the stars in the Sacred waters...gotta go! Yummmmm
