Aloha LoveTribel!

As I write, I'm looking at the beautiful Bay with the red glow over the Golden Gate Bridge from the sun that just set. It's a peaceful moment, with the awe that comes from witnessing such beauty.

The sun also seems to be setting on an American dream with the night descending. We all have different ways of being in the night ... Some completely awake, some sleeping peacefully, sweet dreams to nightmares and everything in between. And many are learning new methods of getting through anxious nights ... deep breaths to new CBDs.

Whatever it takes for us to stay in a peaceful, loving state ... that is our job. And then head out of the clouds and into action. Thich Nat Hahn proposes writing love letters en lieu of protest letters. Creating a true peace movement instead of one with anger and hatred. Being the seed of what we are all wanting to grow into.

I see the dawn as an opportunity for a new adventure that will lead us into the realization of the American dream. One of respect, fairness and inclusiveness for all to live our life as we see fit without hurting another. It's time to end war not have war end us. It's time to feel/hear our personal calling... calling us awake to our unique gifts, that are called into action, to realize this dream. Living our truths, being our best, while not making assumptions or judging others. It's only a small percent of us that would consciously choose fear, greed, hatred, over love and compassion. That percent has been balanced by the over 1% that joined the Women's March worldwide. And as many of us experienced, that march was strong, sometimes fierce, yet full of love and peace ... true peaceful warriors. And the police were more like guardians than adversaries.

May we continue to march for a world that works for all, in love, solidarity and strength. As Hillary said, "Stronger Together". What will that look like in the meantime? Will we have Calexit? Join with Mexico, Oregon, Washington, Canada (the East Coast, then all?) ... until a new Country rises ... stronger together? Get out your popcorn, meditate, march ... and
