Aloha LoveTribe,

I was in my home in Mexico last week where they are getting ready for Dia de Los Muertos, Day of the Dead (Nov 2) as we are seeing signs of Halloween here. Dia de Los Muertos is a day of dancing with and/or honoring our loved ones who have died and Halloween is an opportunity to dress different aspects of our personal and collective personas.

Here's our line-up of treats,treasures,tricks,teachings & coupon...

The treats

Fourth St on Halloween day is having a street wide party. Most of the shops are serving some fun drinks, snacks and activities!

The Treasures

Johnny Was, Biya, Love and Liberty, Citron, Moonlight, Deca, Inizio, Pile ou Face coats in new colors, lots of new jewelry, scarves, shawls, socks, tights, leggings, pants and so much more coming in daily.

A teaching and a trick of the alchemy of love and loss

Yes, it takes time and tears to ease the pain of loss, yet as we "dance" with the spirit/energy of our beloved no longer in body, feel their essence within. We can honor our loss by seeing it transformed and transforming within us. Seeing the gifts of our beloved within us. Some of the gifts I've received from my loved ones are; the ability to use more logic in my thinking, to cry more deeply, to see life through an artist's eye and through puppy love. I hear my mother telling me, "Take care of you!", when I forget while taking care of others needs. We all are changed and expanded by those we love. The trick is to see their unique spirit now integrated in our multidimensional dna, no matter what species our beloved was.
