Thanks for all of you that responded to my last newsletter with appreciation, or upset, with suggestions on what to say or not say, or encouragement to say more. Whether agreeing or disagreeing all but one was communicated in a respectful way. That one I told her I'd have to love her from a distance in order to keep myself and our LoveTribe safe. I believe that woman passionately wanted to do something about the horrors happening, and lashing out at me was her attempt to right wrongs. Most of us feel this need, we just have different beliefs, coping strategies and awareness.

Kobe my 5 year old (going on 15) grandson said his differing belief in a respectful way yesterday. He was telling Sara that one of his current interest is the military. She said, "Do you think you were a soldier in a past life?" He said, "We believe different things. You believe that's real, and I believe that's your imagination." He didn't see a problem with that or the need to change her. Out of the mouths of babes...

For those that didn't read my last newsletters, the main message was:
I believe war is not the answer, it just perpetuates war, as hatred perpetuates hatred.
Ceasefire now.

I believe awareness of our oneness is the only way. And yet "WE" are not there yet. But if we don't start acknowledging that, we will never get there. And that is something I've always said and feel (and believe) I'm here to keep saying.

Be Fearless - Choose Love
