Aloha LoveTribe!

Well, I did my job this week ... living, loving and breathing in paradise. It's an easy job, but someones got to do it! (actually always a challenge to clear the road to leaving!)

Robert and I went to our home in Hana. He worked on taking care of our Jurassic Park like jungle garden, with some beach and friends' visits. And I went to my special spots and favorite walks, visiting friends and enjoying the beauty, air, waters, fauna of this magical place. Ahhhhhh!

Teresa Shook had also just returned to Hana from Washington. She was the "grandmother who started the Women's March". Sparks igniting big movement can happen even from a remote small town. She wrote a Facebook post saying she was going to march on Washington the day after the inauguration and who wanted to join her? She went to bed with 10 women saying they would and woke up to 10,000 and by the next day 100,000, and you know the rest of that story! Living where your heart sings and speaking what's in it ... it works! Now I'm back by our beautiful Bay.

I'm cleaning out the warehouse and backrooms, including some new spring merchandise that I decided to include. For those that read this far and mention LoveTribe, a free scarf (under $30 tagged price) for you for Valentines day, today only. I Love You!
