Finding the balance, one step at a time...

Aloha LoveTribe,

I'm with my immediate family in beautiful air, walking the Labyrinth at the WildThyme Farm, our extended family retreat in Washington, where we escaped to, a couple of weeks ago.

Opening to the idea of flying was the first step we needed to take, as driving that distance with Kobe (our almost 2 year old grandson) wasn't an option as he is in constant motion. We are all so happy we took that first step. And it's been a step by step, day by day navigation since.

Being spontaneous as a "solo monk" is easier than navigating with family both immediate and extended. For me, these times make it easier than usual, because everyone more easily surrenders to not knowing, and being in the flow with me. I always like to feel out when to move day by day and moment by moment (my plans are more like aiming in a direction) but now with watching the level of smoke (bad for Kobe who insists on being outside all of the time), everyone is moving day by day. And this step by step awareness allows us to be open to the miracles of life. And we've enjoyed the miraculous daily! Yeah!

May your days be filled with synchronistic miracles ... small and large, that expand as you notice and appreciate them.

And as always ...
Be Fearless
Choose Love
xoxo Devi

Liquidation Sale meets our Semi-Annual Sale

A step at a time as we navigate this shifting retail reality. This is usually the time of year we do our Semi-Annual Sale, though this year we have no idea what will work going forward. Will there be a second wave? Will we close again? We are "battening down the hatches", we are getting our inventory down as far as we can. And at the same time bringing in fabulous basics for fall, so that if we do continue we are viable. What a dance! The new clothing will be at 20% off for the LoveTribe only.

All clothing now 40% off
